Top Story

State-Approved Route for Susquehanna-Roseland Project is Best for Region and Environment
The chosen route for the Susquehanna-Roseland power line project – already approved by state regulators in both New Jersey and Pennsylvania, and already following an existing power line right of way – is the most reasonable path for this critical improvement to the region's electrical infrastructure, according to formal comments submitted to the National Park Service by Public Service Electric and Gas Company (PSE&G) and PPL Electric Utilities.
